MUSICAL TRAVELOGUE.

January 31st, 1937.

This is the time of year when our display windows are gay with sunny southern wear. At once our glorious ^{winter} snow seems to lose its appeal and our goloshes seem extremely heavy. How we would love to take a cruise. We suddenly stop in front of the window, and there we see a steamer, about to leave the harbour, with a happy throng aboard. We can even hear music..someone is saying a fond farewell, we know it is "God be with you till we meet again".

Let us all join in the send-off with our first hymn...

#36. God be with you.

.....
The boat travels on. We recall the progress charts; the sunny days the rainy days,....and reluctantly the rough days. It recalls the singing of a very old Hymn sung somewhere in the past, shall we sing it now?

#37. Jesus Saviour Pilot me

.....
As we first glimpse the shores of England, we might hear the ship's band below, playing lilting English airs. One of these we shall bring to you from Alison Wallace.

Come to the Fair.

.....
Many from England seek the land of Tyrol at this time of year to enjoy the winter sports in the beautiful Austrian Alps. There not far from Vienna, you might join in the gay festivals and find yourself waltzing to the enchanting strains of the Blue Danube as Margaret Miller Brown will play it for you.

Blue Danube.

.....
From mountain grandeur we enter the new vastness of the Soviet Union. Many thoughts and pictures enter our mind. We hear the dashing chords of Russia's Rachmaninoff. Here they are brought by Miss Miller Brown.

Rachmaninoffs Prelude

.....
Travelling on to India, we go to Burma and then at once the Road to Mandalay stretches before us as told by Mr. Alex Maurice.

The Road to Mandalay.

.....
The neighbour to the East is China with its teeming millions, and ancient words of wisdom, some of which are told by Mr. Tom Phillips.

Confucius

.....
And now the great Pacific claims us. Our first stop is Honolulu. The glory of the mountains in mid-ocean. A garden island we hate to leave. Our necks are decked in garlands of lovely flowers. It is farewell to Hawaii. Alison Wallace will sing their famous song and we will all join in the chorus.

Farewell to thee.

MUSICAL TRAVELOGUE

We are at sea. A ship's concert is in progress, and we are to hear Miss Miller Brown play the famous waltz from De

.....

Our hearts are filled with pride and gladness as we see ahead of us the shores of Canada. It still seems, and is to us the Land of Opportunity. We reach Vancouver, where Pauline Johnson spent such happy days and her poem "Canadian Born" expresses our sentiments as told by Mr. Frank Rostance.

Canadian Born

.....

The train bringing us to Toronto from the Great West, has given us that thrilling feeling of being home at last. We realize ours is a land of beauty, and Mary Edgar of this city, expresses it so simply in our closing hymn. music by Magistrate Jones.

#38.

"God Who Touched Earth With Beauty"

.....

And now that we have completed our journey I would like to take this opportunity of thanking Mr Tom Phillips and the Masquers, and Miss Miller Brown for making our journey such a pleasant one. In all the countries we have found that Music speaks in any language, and we are indeed grateful for the messages our travel agents have brought to us to-night.

Before we serve refreshments, Mr Pryce has a few words to say.
